TIGHE-BISHOP: How many "B's" in annihilate? BELGOROD-DNESTROVKSIY: Dnestrovksiy Liman, a small lake near the shores of Russia's once beloved Sevastopol, was overflowing. When asked where all the water was coming from, the Tzar muttered, "Heck! That's from Austrian tears. After all, to try for Rumania, lose that effort, and still be ther, is something to cry about, isn't it?" A small plane was heard overhead. (Hey! What's with this small plane bit, huh. anyway?)

BELGOROD-DNESTROVKSIY: Dnestrovksiy Liman, a small frog ridden village near the Russian front. In reply to a request about information on a small plane that keep appearing ove Russian soil, the Turk responded: "Lost in the fog again!" When asked why the pilot was lost in the fog, the Turk, smirking and tilting his head back in forth in merriment, retorted, "Aw! Shucks! Them's pilots, ain't they?" ((I just type 'em, 1 don't explain 'em.)}

PAR-WORLO: Well, the world goes up in flames once again! Let's be careful out there, guys!

BUDAPEST-WORLD: The Austro/Hungarian Ruler, Sir Robert, has proclaimed Serbia into his grand empire. "We saw, we like, we conquered," he said at the Royal banquet honoring veterans of the Austrian Tiddley wink championships. ROME-VIENNA: I have heard demands from your peoples to allow teachers to commence with Italian lessons at school! CANAKKALE: Fish scurried for their very lives. The foam on the water multiplied. And, the oil slick grew larger. The people of this tiny fishing village looked across the Marmara Denizi at the town of Ecaebat and saw the cause of all this: a large fleet readied itself for sea duty. "Is it a northerly course, or a westerly direction those vessels will be taking?" a small Bulgarian girl was heard saying as she dried her tears with wet underpants. She turned and ran... then, she stopped suddenly. "Ah! The sound of a Cessna"! He comes! He comes!" she exclaimed as she turned once more to the path that must be taken.

United Hockey is not quite done, so we'll leave the zine at that. A few comments:

If you trade or sub for POMMES, you know that it's been a while since there's been an issue. Hopefully there'll be a one page free issue attached to this zine, or out very shortly. There will be some format change, but I'm not sure exactly what l'll do yet. I will probably truly combine POM-MES and BIG HITS into one publication and declare the separation of games and reading material into separate zines a failure. It's not worth the headache. Most readers like to follow the games, most players like to follow the letter column, and paying for both doesn't seem to be an issue. I'm now slowly getting involved in another hobby (baseball famdom) with zines that cost about $2.00 per issue, roughly double the going rate for Dipzines.

That means I'll probably be adding a sub fee for BiG HiTS real soon. Since part of the game fee is supposed to cover printing and postage, I'll put a part of everyone's game fees into a sub account, and you still need not sub to continue playing your game. Players who don't sub will receive the results of their own games only. Standbys will be required to subscribe. In other words, BIG HITS will begin to operate like 90% of the zines in the hobby.

l've said it once, I'Il say it again. Do not use the abbreviate "NOR" for any province. It will confuse me, and it will probably mean your unit is misordered.

Electronic mail department: I am on both the GEnie and CompuServe networks, and will accept orders sent by E-mail on either. Just arrange it ahead of time with me. I am HANSON,S on GEnie and 73240,3437 on CompuServe. 1 will also send game results via E-mail (3 days after they are posted) if you desire.

I am also looking into methods of sending all results electronically. Various companies will print and post electronic mail, and maybe one will be cheap enough for the low volume of this zine.
